

Why use a BBSA member?

The BBSA represents over 400 member companies that manufacture interior and exterior blinds and awnings.

The association takes a leading role to ensure the highest possible standards of product, service and fair trading throughout the trade

Members of the BBSA have undergone a strict vetting procedure before admittance. The requirements of this procedure include a minimum of three years successful trading, bona fide business premises, inspection of the applicant's premises and satisfactory trade references.

Simply, it is your assurance of the highest possible standards of workmanship, service and fair trading.

The BBSA is also a member of the National Specialist Contractors Council which represents 28 trade associations and over 7000 companies.

All members of the BBSA must abide by the Association's code of practice

The purpose of this Code of Practice is to provide members of the Association with practical guidelines with the aim of improving the quality of the service given by member companies to their customers. It represents a binding commitment on the part of each member of the BBSA to a high standard of quality, safety, integrity and reliability.

In drawing up the Code of Practice, the Association has paid particular attention to recommendations as laid down by the Office of Fair Trading.

The Association, since its inception in 1919, has always actively encouraged the highest standards of product and workmanship combined with professional integrity of conduct and trading.

The products manufactured and supplied by BBSA members include interior and exterior blinds, awnings, security grilles and shutters.

The Association would recommend most strongly to consumers that they only employ the services of reputable, well-established blind and shutter manufacturers - the Association places a very great emphasis on its membership selection procedure.
